

GERMANY REGRETS SUSSEX ATTACK OFFERS REPARATION IN NEW NOTE

Imperial Government Declares Evidence Now Presented Makes It Indubitable That the Vessel Torpedoed Really Was Sussex and Commander, Who Acted in Good Faith, But Hastily, Was Punished.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11.—Germany's new note, acknowledging responsibility for destruction of the Sussex, promising reparation and announcing punishment of the guilty submarine commander, was received here yesterday at the state department, from ambassador Gerard.

The text of the note, made public yesterday, while contending that the submarine commander acted in a bona fide belief that he was facing an enemy warship, when he torpedoed the Sussex, nevertheless says he formed his judgment on insufficient data and did not act in strict accordance with his instructions and that imperial government therefore frankly admits that assumptions, given the United States were not adhered to in this instance.

The note expresses "sincere regret" regarding the destruction of the liner, and declares Germany's readiness to pay an adequate indemnity to injured American citizens. It says the German government "disapproves of the conduct of the commander who has been appropriately punished," and voices a hope that the United States will consider the case settled.

The German note, signed by foreign minister von Jagow, and addressed to ambassador Gerard, is dated May 8 and the ambassador's cablegram transmitting it, May 9.

Supplementing this note of the fourth instant, concerning the conduct of the German submarine commander, the German government has issued a statement, signed by the American ambassador, Mr. James W. Gerard, that the further investigation made by the United States naval authorities concerned in regard to the French steamer Sussex, on the basis of the American evidence, has been completed in the result.

In conformity with the results of investigation the assumption, expressed in the note of the undersigned of the fourth instant, that the damage to the Sussex was to be traced back to the cause of the attack, is hereby confirmed.

Such an assumption and the knowledge of such evidence from the material in the possession of the German government, for itself and without further knowledge of the circumstances connected with the torpedoing of the Sussex, the note states, after the points enumerated in the note of the fourth instant, the following facts had come to the attention of the undersigned: "March 25, 1916, approximately at the same time as the Sussex, an auxiliary warship left the port of Folkestone, with a large armament, and British intelligence on board on the same day a transport steamer was torpedoed in the channel; a few minutes preceding the explosion on the Sussex, she had passed through a mine field, which caused the ship to sink shortly before."

All these facts, installed in the knowledge of the German government, the note states, should be considered in the circumstances, and the note states that the German government is not prepared to consider the case settled until the facts are established.

Comparison of the evidence which was deduced in the note of the fourth instant, from the difference in appearance of the vessel described in the note, with the photograph of the damaged Sussex now in hand, the note states, is of such a nature as to lead to the conclusion that the vessel which was torpedoed was the Sussex, which is described in the note of the fourth instant.

The note states that the German government is not prepared to consider the case settled until the facts are established.

German Papers Evidence Relief Over Acceptance By U. S. of Proposals.

Berlin, Germany, May 11.—With the presentation of the American reply to the last previous German note, the German-American submarine controversy is considered here as settled. Germany holds that its orders to submarine commanders were issued without strings or conditions. Both the Lokal Anzeiger and the Zeitung Am Mittag regard the note as acceptable to Germany. The Zeitung Am Mittag, commenting on the American answer under the caption, "Willie's final word," says that the German-American crisis with its danger of a rupture is now a thing of the past.

"The main thing," it adds, "is that the good relations of the two countries, to the disappointment of all Germany's enemies, who will doubtless try to interpret the answer as hinting that a rupture is postponed only temporarily. The American note, however, does not indicate that the United States understood Germany's expectation in the light of the conditions, and reference thereto in the American answer is made merely for the sake of clarity."

"Himmler Is Withdrawn," commenting on the American reply to the German note on submarine warfare, the Lokal Anzeiger expresses the opinion that an understanding has been reached and that the German note has withdrawn its ultimatum.

"In any case," continues the Gazette, the present reply of president Wilson changes nothing concerning the declaration of the German government, according to which there exists no difference of opinion concerning the blockade of the British and our submarine war."

The newspaper adds that the statement in the German note, that the United States would reserve to itself the liberty of action, still remains standing.

TRYING TO GET OVER LINE OF GERMANY

From one of the numerous abjectly directory and checks my statement. "Where have you been living recently?" "I give the name of a neutral country."

"How long have you lived there?" "I reply."

"More Minute Probing." "And whence are you proceeding from Germany?"

"I name a town in another country." "And what is your permanent address?"

"I again give a reply." "Without saying a word the lieutenant hands to the captain a few lines of paper. I recognize their red headings."

"You say you have lived so many years at X. Can you tell me where you lived there?"

"I name a street and the number of a house which I know to exist in X. I have never lived there."

"One Must Know His Town Well." "You know of course the street Y. Can you tell me what the square at the end of the street is called?"

"I give the necessary reply. I have to tell the whereabouts of the postoffice, the palace, such and such a theatre, shops and squares."

"You say you lived constantly at X. Willing to trip up my opponent, I ask him to give me the name of a tiny town in a small neutral country, and I cannot help laughing inwardly, according to which the German officer will soon find himself because I know that this little town will not be found in any of the Baedeker."

"Now will you follow me?" says one of the lieutenants and guides me to a writing table, along which are ranged several boxes and a number of small bottles. "We enter one of the cabinets."

"Even Boots Ripped Open." "Will you have a look at your boots? First of all, please take off your boots. The lieutenant takes the boots and hands them over to a soldier."

"Have no fear. We shall fix them and take off the heels, but we shall not touch the leather and return in good condition."

"All my body, right down to my feet and hands, is carefully examined. The lieutenant takes his glasses and looks through my passport, opens my watch, looks at its mechanism, reads the trade mark of the manufacturer, and then takes my fountain pen, tears out the ink and probes its inside with a hatpin."

"Fountain Pen Probed." "What can one tell there?" I asked. "Have you never seen a pendulum, rings and other things? You hold them up to the light, and through a tiny little point, you see highly magnified views of cathedrals, mountains, views of towns, etc. Well, you can do the same with my document—reduce it photographically to a tiny point. It at the bottom of your fountain pen."

"My boots were brought in, and, indeed, on the soles one could see new neat stitches."

"I breathe freely once more, dress and go on the platform."

TO HONOR GRAND LODGE OFFICERS

Mrs. Burroughs, U. S. Goen to Be Given Receptions; Head State Lodges.

Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters are planning receptions for U. S. Goen, the new grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, grand lodge of Texas, and for Mrs. Matilda Burroughs, grand chief of the grand temple, Pythian Sisters, upon their return from the grand lodge meetings at Dallas.

These two El Pasoans have been honored by being elevated to the highest places in their respective orders in the state.

Grand chancellor Goen will go to Sweetwater before returning to his home here and Mrs. Burroughs will also visit in East Texas before she returns from the Dallas convention.

Mrs. Burroughs Long Active. Mrs. Burroughs has long been identified with the order and her election to the highest office in the state comes as a result of her work in behalf of the fraternity.

Mrs. Burroughs was one of 50 who organized Matilda temple, No. 21, in El Paso. This was on April 12, 1901. She was at once elected to office, being made musician of the temple. She successfully held every office in the list of the local temple and her activity in the grand temple has been being elected to office. Thereafter she filled every chair in the grand temple, reaching the top with her election Wednesday as grand chief.

Mrs. Burroughs is the mother of Hal Christie, cashier of the Texas Bank and Trust company, Walter Christie, connected with the ammeter, and George Christie, interested in mining in Mexico. Mrs. Burroughs is also a prominent member of the Eastern Star.

Supports Home. The Pythian Sisters throughout the state are active in behalf of the Pythian home for indigent Pythians and their children, located at Weatherford. The institution now contains about 200 children who are being educated and in every way prepared for the battle of life. Matilda temple recently produced "The Magic Mirror," the proceeds from which went to the institution. The Pythian Sisters pay particular attention to providing comforts for the home, and make quilts for use of the inmates, provide Christmas presents and remember them at Easter.

U. S. Goen, the new grand chancellor, was born in Moody, Texas, and joined the Knights of Pythias lodge in that town. He came to El Paso in 1901 and joined the El Paso lodge the same year. He was elected grand chancellor of the El Paso lodge in 1904, and in 1905 he was elected grand chancellor of the El Paso lodge, he became active in the consolidated lodge.

He was elected inner guard of the Texas grand lodge in 1912 and was advanced to the position of prelate, master of arms, vice grand chancellor, grand chancellor at each succeeding grand lodge meeting. Mr. Goen is an attorney at El Paso and was a delegate to the Progressive convention in Chicago in 1912. He has been an active member of the Knights of Pythias lodge for 17 years.

Lodge Leads. The El Paso lodge, which has been honored by having one of its members elected to the highest position in the state grand lodge, is one of the most active in the state. It was founded in 1889, and with the consolidation of the El Paso and El Paso lodges in 1904, it took the lead of the lodges in western Texas. The lodge has its castle hall in the new Lanier building on North Stanton street, having just recently moved into the new quarters.

KING'S DAUGHTERS AND SONS MEET IN BURLINGTON. Burlington, Wis., May 11.—Delegates and visitors from all sections of the United States and Canada assembled here today for the opening session of the first annual convention of the International order of King's Daughters and Sons. The convention will continue through May 15.

Today's session included a meeting of members of the national council, Friday's session of the convention will include the reports of officers and the resolution committee and the committee on arrangements.

TO ENTERTAIN EDITORS. A meeting of the city interest and public entertainment committee of the chamber of commerce will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss entertainment for the coming meeting of the Texas press association, beginning June 6 in this city.

A New Use For This Word

The New Post Toasties are truly entitled to the word "delicious."

They're distinguished by the tiny bubbles found on each flake and they carry the full, rich flavour of choice, white Indian corn—not found in corn flakes of the past.

And unlike common corn flakes, they are not "chaffy" in the package and don't grow mushy in milk or cream.

Note carefully the tiny bubbles—then try a handful dry to test the flavour. In comparison, other corn flakes are as "chaffy."

MESSANGER BOY IS BITTEN BY DOG, CLOTHES TORN

A messenger boy employed by the El Paso Consolidated company was injured Thursday morning when he was attacked by a dog while making a delivery at the home of Mrs. A. C. Brown at 1116 North Avenue.

A physician was called and it was found that the boy had several deep lacerations. The dog showed no symptoms of rabies and was taken to the El Paso animal hospital.

When taken to a Herald reporter Mrs. Brown said: "I called a doctor and he said that the dog was not hurt and that the dog was not dangerous."

Neighbors stated that it required several persons to restrain the delivery boy after the dog attacked him.
